A Letter to the Children:

Beloved ones, you must know the difference between God's voice and the voice of the enemy. He is giving you a way to know the difference. Lean not on your own understanding. But press into Him, children. Press into His Holy Spirit and let Him love you. Let Him show you what real love is. Be not afraid, for though there may have been those who have hurt you, He will share with you what it is like to be whole and accepted. You are not rejected by Him, and you do not need to do anything to make Him love you. He loves you. He has loved you since He thought of you in His holy dwelling place. He is sending those who will help you, for you are never alone. He will always be with you to bring correction to what you thought could never be fixed. Though you have been through suffering, He can bring correction and heal those wounds in ways nothing else can. You are never alone, children. For He will be with you.
